

DIXON TO HAVE STREET-WIDE BRIDGE OVER RIVER

MAN MAY DIE FROM INJURY COLONY FIRE

Big Barn Burns—Frightened Horse Kicks Patient

Fire of unknown origin starting in the hay mow of the big barn on the No. 1 farm at the Dixon state hospital grounds Sunday morning, resulted in the loss of the structure and most of its contents, the loss being estimated at about $30,000. The loss is total, the state carrying no insurance on its institution buildings.

The blaze was discovered a few minutes before 8 o'clock by farm employees and had started in the extreme south end of the hay mow and was burning fiercely. A general alarm was turned in at once and in 20 minutes time, the big frame structure had collapsed, so rapidly did the flames spread throughout the building.

Helper Gravely Injured
Ray Crowe, aged 43, of Evanston, a working patient, was probably fatally injured, when he with other patients working at the No. 1 farm, and assisting in removing 19 head of horses from the burning structure, was kicked in the head by one of the frightened animals, sustaining a fracture of the skull. He was rushed to the institution hospital where he was given medical attention at once, but late this morning he was still unconscious and little hope was entertained for his recovery. In the excitement, Crowe is said to have entered the wrong side of the stall to cut the halter strap and release the animal.

As the horse charged out of the stall, it kicked Crowe in the head with such force that he was thrown several feet. The flames spread with such rapidity that all hope of saving the barn or its contents was abandoned when the institution fire fighting apparatus arrived, and all attention was directed to the surrounding buildings. The heavy oak grove surrounding the buildings prevented the fire from spreading to the other structure, and the farm residence of Emil Peterson, farm manager of the institution, which were threatened repeatedly.

Pigs Die In Flames
Five brood sows and 14 small pigs perished in the flames. About 1,500 bushels of oats and one hundred tons of hay were still smoldering this morning. A large amount of farm machinery and several sets of harness was also consumed in the fire.

On Sunday, August 7, of last year the big barn on the No. 2 farm was struck by lightning during a thunder storm and burned to the ground. A new barn which is to house the dairy herd and which will replace the structure destroyed a year ago is now under construction. Stock from the No. 1 farm was being moved to the No. 3 farm today, where it will be cared for until plans can be completed for the erection of a new structure.

Oregon Woman In Dixon Hospital After Auto Crash

A Dodge sedan owned by John Putnam of Oregon, was badly damaged Sunday morning about 10:30 when it turned over on the route 2 paving directly in front of the Brier-ton school house, scene of almost a score of wrecks in the past two weeks. The car was being driven toward Grand Detour when the driver apparently lost control and after it had missed a cement culvert abutment, it swerved over the paving and turned over on its side.

Mrs. Putnam sustained a deep flesh wound on the right leg and was rushed to the Dixon public hospital. Both Mr. and Mrs. Putnam sustained severe bruises and other minor injuries. The car which was badly damaged was hauled to a local garage.

Join in Plan For Publicity In The Arms Manufacture

Geneva, Aug. 27—(AP)—Japan, Great Britain and Italy today announced their adherence to the doctrine of the United States that "pitiless publicity" should be given to the governmental as well as the private manufacture of arms.

This stand developed at the opening session of a commission which will frame a draft convention for the control of the private manufacture of implements of war. It is interpreted as meaning that all the great powers are ready to publish information concerning the manufacture of arms and munitions, whether that manufacture takes place in government arsenals or elsewhere, when the arms are for use of governments.

CHICAGO BAD MEN BACK ON THE JOB WITH BOMBS-GUNS

Kill One Man In Robbery And Bomb Two Buildings

Chicago, Aug. 27—(AP)—Vacation is over for Chicago's bad men. Within a 24-hour period ended at 4 o'clock this morning they had thrown two bombs—one of which rocked the loop—and shot a man dead.

The man killed was Benjamin Benjamin, 33, owner and manager of the Standard Amusement Company operating a carnival on the north side. Robbers in an automobile stopped the machine in which Benjamin was riding and shot him down when they thought he intended to resist. They escaped with a pouch containing $724 in coin. Other receipts of the company had been taken to Benjamin's hotel a few minutes earlier.

The first bombing wrecked the front of the two-story brick plant in which is published the Star, at Chicago Heights. Windows of the business district of the suburb were shattered for a block around. This bombing was attributed by King Williams, editor of the Star, to the newspaper's editorial warfare against gamblers.

"Gamblers have climaxed a series of lawless acts in the attempt to suppress publicity of underworld activities in Chicago Heights," Williams said. "This latest outrage is characteristic of the utter disregard the criminal element has for law and order."

Bomb Down Town Building.
The downtown Chicago bombing was just outside the loop and within a block of the Hotel Sherman, many of whose guests were aroused by the report. The building bombed is used as an employment agency on the second floor, while on the street floor it is occupied by a saloon.

A negro porter, Wm. Carpenter, was the only person in the place when the explosion occurred. He was not hurt. He could give police little information concerning a possible motive. The front of the saloon was demolished, although the interior escaped serious damage.

15 NATIONS SIGNED THE PEACE PACT

Kellogg-Briand Treaty Signed Today in Paris

Paris, August 27—(AP)—The Kellogg-Briand renunciation of war treaty was signed this afternoon by the plenipotentiaries of fifteen nations.

Dr. Gustave Stressemann, the German Foreign Minister, was the first to sign the historic document, attaching his signature at 3:45 p. m. (9:45 a. m. Eastern standard time).

Secretary of State Kellogg was the second to sign the treaty and Foreign Minister Benes of Czechoslovakia affixed the fifteenth and final signature at 3:55 p. m.

By the pact the fifteen countries renounced war as "an instrument of national policy."

With its signing all the peoples of the world were invited to join in a great effort of achievement to establish universal peace. Soviet Russia being asked to take part through the French government.

Significantly Dr. Stressemann, the first German Foreign Minister, officially received in Paris since the year of 1870, was the first to sign under the alphabetical rule applied to the names of the signatory countries. The United States was considered as being called America in order to make Secretary Kellogg the second signer.

Foreign Minister Hymans of Belgium was third and Foreign Minister Briand, whose message to the American people through the Associated Press many months ago was the origin of the pact which Secretary Kellogg developed and expanded, came fourth.

CANDIDATES MEET HERE ON TUESDAY

Meet Committeemen of 13th District Here At Noon

Chicago, Aug. 27—(AP)—Republican state candidates will conclude their tour of Illinois this week by holding organization meetings in five congressional districts.

The largest theater in DeKalb will be the scene of the meeting in that city Tuesday and a thousand Republican workers from all parts of the 12th congressional district and other sections of Northern Illinois will attend.

The candidates making the trip this week will be Otis F. Glenn, nominee for United States Senator; Louis L. Emmerson, nominee for Governor; Fred E. Sterling, for lieutenant-governor; Oscar Carlstrom, candidate for re-election as Attorney-General; William J. Stratton, nominee for Secretary of State; Oscar Nelson, for auditor; Omer Custer, for treasurer; and Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick and Richard Yates, candidates for congressmen-at-large.

Galesburg will be the first stop at noon today with Monmouth the night meeting place. Tuesday noon the candidates will be at Dixon before going to DeKalb for a night meeting. They will be at Elgin Wednesday.

Big Meeting At Dixon
The meeting at Dixon will be at the Elks Club and Republican precinct committeemen from the counties of the 13th Congressional District will attend to hear the candidates.

State Senator Harry G. Wright of DeKalb, chairman of the Republican committee on organization, said today that interest in the attendance at the organization meetings held to date have been greater than in the campaign in 1924, although this year the work has been undertaken two months earlier than it was four years ago.

"Women constitute fifty per cent of the attendance at our organization meetings," he said. "They have never been so interested in the success of the Republican ticket as they are today."

"At the chautauqua at Petersburg last week, Representative Homer Tice of Greenville polled 57 Democratic women, and 49 of these declared they would vote for Hoover."

A SUMMARY OF KELLOGG PACT SIGNED TODAY

Paris, August 27—(AP)—The Kellogg-Briand treaty condemns recourse to war for the solution of international controversies and the signatory nations renounce it as an instrument of national policy in their relations with one another.

The treaty provides that "settlement or solution of all disputes or conflicts, of whatever nature or whatever origin they may be" shall be sought only by pacific means.

The preamble declares that any signatory power which seeks to promote its national interests by resort to war shall be denied the benefits furnished by the treaty. Thus if a signatory state resorts to war in violation of the pact, the other contracting parties are released from their obligations under the treaty to that state.

In proposing the treaty, Secretary Kellogg declared it does not restrict, or impair in any way the right of self-defense, and does not conflict with the League of Nations covenant since the covenant imposes no firmative primary obligation to go to war.

Nor does the treaty conflict with Locarno peace pacts. Mr. Kellogg pointed out, if the parties to the Locarno treaties are under any positive obligations to go to war, he made clear, such obligation certainly would not attach until one of the parties had resorted to war in violation of its solemn pledges under these treaties. And since all the nations signatory to the Locarno treaties also attach their signatures to the new treaty the Locarno treaties could not be violated without also violating the Kellogg-Briand pact.

SIGNING OF TREATY FINDS ARMAMENTS HEAVIER THAN 1913

Distrust and Suspicion in Western Europe is The Cause

(By ELMER ROBERTS)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
Paris, August 27—(AP)—Consummation of the Kellogg-Briand war renunciation treaty finds western Europe, with the exception of Germany, more heavily armed than in 1913.

Upwards of 3,000,000 men are in actual military service and, as it happens at this season, many hundreds of thousands have been called to the colors for training. Swift practice mobilizations are in progress and war maneuvers are under way throughout Europe.

In artillery, in stores of munitions, in chemicals and in works for making gases, in aircraft, in tanks, in all the complicated apparatus of destruction, the nations have a striving power immensely superior to that of 1913.

This is especially true of the powers large and small lately allied in the war. The central powers are compulsory disarmed under peace treaty limitations, but the victorious and non-combatant powers, excluding Serbia and Russia, have added to their armaments and the signing of the treaty finds western Europe with the exception of Germany more heavily armed than in 1913.

Great Britain and Ireland, which just prior to the war had 400,000 men under arms, now have troops totaling 400,000. France, whose troops before the war numbered 646,000 has added 20,000 to this figure. Italy, whose 1913 army consisted of 274,000 men, now has 347,000 to 70,000. Roumania has an army of 265,000 compared with 103,000 maintained before the war.

States non-combatant in the great war have felt impelled to add to their military establishments. Switzerland, which had a so-called active militia before the war, of 28,000 has now 170,000 owing to an improved organization. Denmark has increased its peace strength from 14,000 in 1913, to 33,000; Holland from 26,000 to 29,999; Spain from 98,000 to 224,000. Portugal has declined from 30,000 to 25,000. Norway from 7,000 to 4,000. Sweden has increased from 26,500 officers and voluntarily enlisted men to 28,500.

The phrase "Western Europe" has been used for the reason that Europe taken as a whole has about 1,000,000 fewer men under arms. The German army has shrunk from 800,000 to 100,000. Russia and the succession states carved from her have about 900,000 now, instead of 1,200,000, as in 1913. Austria and her succession states have 190,000 instead of 424,000 in 1913. Bulgaria, instead of 60,000 is limited to 20,000.

Why these armaments? That is a question thrusting upon us but did not get here and we went to (Continued on page 2)

REOPENED INQUEST INTO DEATH HERE OF JOS. CARLSON

Negroes Brought Back From Galesburg to Tell Their Story

Coroner Frank M. Banker of Franklin Grove reopened the inquest into the death of Joseph Carlson of Polo, Saturday afternoon in the county court room and the investigation continued for more than two hours, 1 o'clock on the afternoon of August 4, Carlson, who was employed in the local J. I. Case plow company plant, was on his way home to Polo and about three miles north of Dixon, his car was demolished and he sustained injuries which resulted in his death Thursday evening, August 16 at the Dixon hospital. Tetanus infection which developed in a scalp wound on the left side of his head caused his death two weeks after the accident.

When Coroner Banker ordered an inquest to be conducted over the body, it developed that the sum of $65 had been removed from the clothing of the unconscious man at sometime between the happenings of the accident until his reception into the hospital. This fact brought about the continuation of the inquest until Saturday afternoon in order that members of Polk's St. Louis Ramlor orchestra, a Negro organization of Galesburg, Ill., might be subpoenaed to testify. Mr. Carlson was struck by a Packard touring car in which Polk and seven other members of his orchestra were traveling from Dubuque, Iowa, to their home at Galesburg, with Polk at the wheel.

Polk and Eudell Duncan were summoned from Galesburg to relate their version of the accident before the coroner's jury. State's Attorney Mark C. Keller assisted in the examination of the witnesses and Attorney John P. Devine appeared for the members of the Carlson family.

Roberts Testifies
State Highway Officer Hal Roberts who responded to a call and went to the scene of the accident gave his version of the affair, stating that Carlson had driven his Ford coupé off the paving onto the shoulder in order to give the Galesburg car room enough to pass a truck which was coming toward Dixon. Royal Renner of Lanark, driver of the poultry truck, testified that he was driving at the rate of about ten miles an hour, following a Ford touring car, when the crash occurred beside the cab of his truck. I was unable to get out onto the paving, said Renner, and assisted in removing the wreckage, he said. He told the jury that Carlson was thrown out of his coupe to the side of the road by the force of the impact and that when he saw Carlson driving north, his car was entirely off the paving, driving on the shoulder.

Sylvester Brierton, residing near the scene of the accident, told of having heard the crash and running out onto the paving, saw Carlson lying on the ground, the blood streaming from a wound on his head. W. M. Miller, in front of whose farm driveway the crash occurred, told of being in the barn at the time and upon hearing the collision, running out on the paving, where he saw Carlson lying on the ground, blood pouring from a scalp wound, and his clothing covered with mud. The Packard car had left the paving, entirely and was up against the fence on the east side of the road, while the Polo man's car was about the middle of the paving, completely wrecked, he stated.

Polk Tells Story
William Polk, driver of the Packard touring car and director of the orchestra, testified that he was returning from Guttenberg, Iowa, coming by train to Dubuque, and thence by auto on his way to Galesburg. He told of stopping at a Polo filling station for water and following the poultry truck toward Dixon. It was raining, Polk testified, and at the scene of the accident he observed the truck stopped on the paving directly in his pathway. While Renner was emphatic in his statement before the jury that his truck was not stopped and that he was proceeding at about ten miles an hour following a Ford touring car, Polk maintained that the truck stopped, but added that Renner told him after the accident that his wheels had been in motion at all times.

Claims Truck Stopped
"I saw the truck stopped when I was about 30 feet away," I was driving at a speed of about 25 miles an hour and applied my brakes which were working in good condition. My car began to skid in order to keep from picking into the back end of the truck, I pulled out on the left hand side, I seen Carlson coming toward me and knew that I did not have time enough to pass the truck and a Ford touring car which was just ahead of it, so I took the ditch on the left hand side. Carlson's car struck my right front fender and threw me against the fence and his car back on the center of the paving.

"One of my boys was thrown out but did not get hurt and we went to (Continued on page 2)

The news of Mr. Richards' death, though not unexpected, casts a deep shadow of sorrow over the community where he was so well known and so universally loved and respected. Mr. Richards had been desperately ill for about six months and had fought courageously to regain his health, but from the start of his illness, caused by a growth in the brain, it was realized that his condition was grave. He was married to Margaret Clark 14 years ago, just prior to his enlistment in the A. E. F. for service in the world war. A more complete obituary will be published later. Funeral arrangements will not be known until the arrival of the funeral party this evening.

She leaves to mourn her loss four sons and one daughter, one daughter, Mrs. John Mahan, died in California five years ago. The children living are, William, David, John and Mrs. Shaver of this city, and George of Chicago.

Mrs. James was born at Peatoubar, Canada, May 6, 1855. In her early days she was married to Isaac James, who passed away in 1906. At the time of her death she was 73 years, 4 months and 20 days.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday morning at 9:30 o'clock at St. Patrick's church. Rev. Father Foley conducting the services.

Mrs. James was a devoted Christian, a loyal mother and a good neighbor. Her children's welfare was uppermost in her mind. Whenever possible she gave her services to the ill and needy and was held in the highest esteem by all who knew her.

Mr. Nettz took a number of snap shots which are interesting to view. DIXON VOTES BOND ISSUE FOR BRIDGE

Overwhelming Vote of About Ten to One Favors Bridge

By an overwhelming vote of nearly ten to one, the voters of Dixon Saturday approved the bonds to build a new bridge over Rock River at Peoria Avenue. The sentiment for the new bridge was not centered in any particular part of the city and every one of the six precincts carried by a landslide for the bridge.

The total vote of 2,542 yes and 264 no was a surprise to even the most optimistic backers of the project, although it had been generally conceded before the election that the bridge bonds probably would carry. There was no organized objection and the endorsers of the plan were very active in their campaign for the bridge.

When the Telegraph election bulletins had been posted and the new bridge assured, the bridge enthusiasts were jubilant and organized an impromptu parade, with band music, banners, etc.

CHANGING TIRE ON PAVEMENT IS CAUSE OF CRASH

Two Sterling Autos Wrecked Near Prairieville Last Eve

Two Sterling cars crashed together on the Lincoln Highway just east of the Prairieville school last night about 9 o'clock in which an Overland touring car was completely demolished. Mrs. Matilda Speer, who was riding with her brother, H. E. Kurlis of Sterling in the Overland touring car sustained a broken nose and both were cut and bruised.

James McCormick of Sterling, driving a Dodge touring car is alleged to have stopped just east of the Prairieville school house to change a tire. His car is said to have been partly parked on the paving and Kurlis, driving west did not observe it and drove into the rear of the Dodge. The injured parties were taken to Sterling where they received medical attention and the wrecked cars towed to Sterling garages.

THE PRAISE OF SUMMER DAYS

"Now, if ever, come the perfect days." The summer chorus is at its height, now that every field, wood and hedgerow glows with mellow beauty. Can we count the million roses dawning in the hedgerows with velvet-coated bees rifling their golden hearts? Can we discover half the clustering honeysuckle, tantalizingly out of reach, wafting its fragrance down deep green lanes. Through that five barred gate, far away across the fields, crimson sorrel, buttercups and open-hearted daisies are swaying among the ripe grasses. Each little spire of praise reaches up to the vast heaven, where soaring skylarks pour out their unceasing joy.

Hayfields are awaiting the swish of the scythes. All help in the fields, until haystacks, compact and fragrant, have gathered all the waving loveliness beneath their gray-green gables. Now we pass from hot sunshine and spicy scents, into the cool depths of pine woods, where the wind is chanting low, his message with the melody of thrush and blackbird. The blackbird, it seems, are beginning to flock for the southern flight. Beyond the woods, with their wayward paths, their ferns and silent blue-bells, stretch rustling fields of oats and barley, shining in the sun; and stately wheat, rearing, here and there, scarlet poppies, purple scabious—flecks of color, hovering over pale-green seas.

Oh! The hum, the blush, the praise of summer days!

Beautiful Wedding Celebrated Saturday

A beautiful wedding of interest to Dixon, Sterling and Morrison friends took place in Chicago on Saturday afternoon, Aug. 25, at the Edgewater Presbyterian church at 4 o'clock, when Miss Edith Mae Grampp and Howard G. Krohn, were married.

The impressive Presbyterian ceremony was solemnized by Rev. C. R. Wheeland, pastor of the Edgewater Presbyterian church, in the presence of the immediate relatives and a few intimate friends. Palms and ferns and white flowers combined in artistic and lovely decorations at the church, for the event.

The bride who made a lovely picture, wore a charming gown of blue transparent velvet with accessories harmonizing. The single ring ceremony was used.

After the congratulations Mr. and Mrs. Krohn left on a wedding motor trip of three weeks to the east, Mr. Krohn taking his vacation at this time. The bride's traveling costume was a modish ensemble in dark blue. On their return from the wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Krohn will reside at 542 Sheridan Road, Evanston, their apartment being completely furnished, and ready for occupancy.

The bride of Saturday, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Grampp, of 402 Ottawa avenue, is a graduate of the Dixon High School, and for two years attended Beloit College, and also took a teachers' training course at the DeKalb State Teachers College. She is a member of the national Sorority, "Pi Beta Phi." For the past year she was supervisor of music in the schools at Forest Park where she was held in high esteem by her co-workers of the faculty in the schools and by the students attending school. She is a charming girl with a winsome personality and is a talented musician. Her husband, Mr. Krohn, son of W. F. MENU for the FAMILY

BY SISTER MARY
BREAKFAST—Blueberries with ready to serve cereal and sugar and cream, French toast, marmalade, milk coffee.
LUNCHEON—Creamed celery on toast, shredded lettuce with French dressing apple float, milk tea.
DINNER—Jellied lamb loaf, lattice potatoes, late peas in cream, tomato and cabbage salad, orange ice, plain cake, milk, coffee.

Tomatoes are delicious stuffed with finely shredded cabbage mixed with a sour cream dressing. Use lemon juice in place of vinegar and chred the cabbage very fine if small children are to be served.

Apple float is ideal for children as well as grown-ups.

Apple Float
One and one-half cups boiling water, 1 cup sugar, 4 apples, 2 eggs, 1-4 cups milk, 1-2 tablespoon flour, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla.

Make a syrup of water and 1-2 cup sugar and boil five minutes. Add apples pared and cored, cover and simmer, basting frequently until tender but not broken. Remove to a baking dish and reduce syrup until thick. Fill cavities of apples with syrup and let cool. Beat whites of eggs until stiff and dry, beating in five table-spoons sugar and a few drops of vanilla. Pile on top of apples and bake in a slow oven until meringue colors. It will take about 15 minutes. Chill and serve with custard sauce made by beating yolks of eggs with remaining sugar, flour and salt sifted together. Add milk scalded over hot water, stirring constantly. Cook over hot water until mixture thickens and coats the spoon. Cool and flavor with vanilla.

Bridge Made Easy

THE FINESSE—1
In the manipulation of the cards the finesse is one of the most useful "working tools." It is a maneuver which assists in winning a trick for you with a card lower than one which is still out against you. It also helps to establish a suit, that is, to give you complete control of it so that you may win a trick with every card in that suit.

An illustration of the finesse in a situation frequently encountered may be described as follows:
West holds the king and four of hearts; Dummy, the ace, queen; East holds none and the declarer holds the two and three of hearts.

The only way in which the declarer can win two tricks in hearts is to lead a small card from his hand to the ace-queen. If west holds the king, both the ace and queen will win tricks. If West plays the 4, the declarer plays the queen; if west plays the king, the declarer covers with the ace in the dummy and the queen is then sure to win a trick.

If east holds the king, the declarer will lose the queen and the finesse will fail. This, however, does not lessen the value of the maneuver. There is a chance of making a trick with the queen and he takes that chance! Should he play from the dummy, he would be sure to lose a trick regardless of whether east or west held the king. This finesse gives the declarer his only chance of winning two tricks in the suit.

Birthday Surprise Friday Evening

On Friday evening, Aug. 24th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice McKune, twenty-three neighbors and friends gathered and delightfully surprised Miss Sylvia Brechon on her twenty-first birthday. A delicious picnic supper was served, including a splendid yellow and white angel food cake, with twenty-one candles decorating the white frosting which covered it. After the supper, the evening was spent in dancing, music, and in games.

Miss Brechon received many beautiful and useful gifts with best wishes from her friends for a happy year and many more to follow.

The guests departed after spending a most enjoyable evening.

Weber-Hawkinson Marriage Recorded

Prophetstown, Aug. 25—Miss Agnes Hawkinson and Clarence Weber, both of Prophetstown, were united in marriage at high noon Wednesday, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. L. E. Winter of Durand, a former pastor of Leon, and a friend of both the bride and groom.

The marriage took place in the home of Fred Ackberg, a cousin of the bride. The home was elaborately decorated in flowers and ferns. The couple was attended by Miss Miriam Weber, maid of honor, and by Lloyd Toppert, best man. The bride was gowned in pink georgette and the maid of honor in tan crepe.

Following the ceremony, a three course dinner was served, the company following the marriage. Mr. and Mrs. Weber will take an automobile trip through Nebraska, Colorado and Kansas and on their return will make their home on a farm.

Mrs. Weber has been a successful teacher in this vicinity for several years and is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Hawkinson. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Weber.

The couple have a large circle of friends in this community where they have lived many years.

The WOMAN'S DAY-ALLENE SUGGER

No little tongue-wagging has been started by Louise Luckenbill's refusal of the vice-presidency of the New York advertising firm for which she works because she said her firm would lose money by such a thing. Miss Luckenbill, who handles all the cosmetic and women's wear accounts for the agency, explains that so many business men are still prejudiced against women in business that they would never have confidence in any firm which put so much confidence in a woman.

SHE SHOWED 'EM!
Whether she's right or wrong, and probably at this date she's right, the fact remains that she gave ample evidence in her refusal of being a canny business woman in whom anyone should have confidence. First of all, she made considerable page-one publicity for her firm. Secondly, she refused personal advancement for the good of her organization as a whole, which is more than on often hears of any business man doing.

FUNNY HUSBAND

Just another story of the clown, the funny man, the big-humorist, who was pronounced a terrible grouch in his own home. Mrs. Harry Leon Wilson got a divorce from her famous humorist husband the other day. Part of her complaint was that her husband had no sense of humor, and was not at all amusing at home.

Mrs. Wilson is not the first spouse to learn that the better half is one human being at home and another abroad. But, as the stage comedian says, "What's the use of being married if you can't be yourself at home?" The eternal question probably is which is "the real self?" Many a wife suspects that the one away from home is merely the best self, while the one at home is the worst self.

WEDDING BELLS

The old story of romance flowering from desperation is told by rumors that Countess de Jantze, who shot Raymond de Trafford in a Paris railroad compartment nearly a year ago and then tried to kill herself, will wed him soon.

The story is new, for, whereas romance has often flowered from a man's desperation and the cold lady has flown to his side when he tried to "end it all," a woman's desperation has generally meant only her finale. Men do not like women to be desperate and unresigned to male decisions. They must ever be the pursued; not the pursuing. Good for the Countess if she made even a blow at traditional womanliness work!

DRIVE EARLY AUTO BUT CAN'T DRIVE NOW

Elkhart, Ind.—(AP)—Mrs. John S. Landon of Elkhart, believed by the late Elwood Haynes to be the first woman to drive a gasoline automobile in the United States, does not own a car now and can not drive one.

In the fall of 1898 a "motor wagon" company here had moved into its new 40 by 150 foot building and started turning out horseless carriages.

One noon, Haynes told Mrs. Landon, then in his employ, that he would leave his machine down town and he wanted her to drive it to the factory. She did, successfully, and found Haynes waiting anxiously for her. He had wanted to prove

Short Interviews with Famous Women

"If public schools took the responsibility of giving girls a course in 'How to Pick a Husband,' fewer marriages would go on the rocks."

That is one cure for the marriage divorce problem, suggested by Mary Hickey, specialist in patching up marriages in one of New York's biggest domestic relations courts.

"Pet dogs have their pedigrees established and new houses have their titles searched. But husbands are taken on faith," she complained.

"When I started this work years ago I was shocked to hear a woman say she married her husband after three week's acquaintance. Now it is nothing to hear a blonde waitress admit she waited on a good looking guy at lunch and married him that same night. They heard each other's names the first time when the Justice

The public schools at least could teach girls to give as much time and attention to deciding on their husbands as it takes them, say, to pick a hat.

"Schools concentrate on every known subject under the sun but the most important thing in a woman's life—marriage. I really think something should be done to start marriage courses."

BEATEN BY LONELINESS

Mrs. Adeline Lethermon lives in Dimondale, Mich. She is 23 years old, crippled and poverty-stricken, deserted by her husband. She has a four-year-old daughter, Virginia Rose.

The other day Mrs. Lethermon left the farm where she lives, and with the little girl, hobbled across the fields to an isolated wheat field. There she strangled her daughter to death, hobbling back home afterwards. A neighbor found the child's body and called the police, who arrested Mrs. Lethermon. She confessed, quite without remorse.

"I knew she would never get food and care," Mrs. Lethermon. "She needs things that money can buy, and I have no money and no friends. I took the proper course."

Then, a little bit later, she added:
"Virginia won't be hungry now. She won't have to suffer like I have. She's happier than I am now."

And now the district attorney is wondering what to do with the woman.

One can imagine that the world seemed like a heartless place to this woman. Poverty, illness and loneliness are terrible things to combat. When they all attack together they give the feeling that one is alone against the universe.

And yet—how pitiful, how tragic, that the young mother could not have understood the world a little better! People are not really selfish or indifferent; they simply do not know. Even though Mrs. Lethermon had not a friend in the world, an appeal for help would have brought a ready response. Any newspaper would have been glad to present her case. It is safe to say that the people of Michigan would have come to the rescue most promptly. There is in the human heart a vast capacity for sympathy, a vast desire to help the unfortunate.

It is too late, now, of course. The little girl is gone, and it is pretty obvious that all the help in the world won't do the mother much good now. About all that can be done is to treat Mrs. Lethermon as wisely and sympathetically as possible.

Perhaps, though, that isn't quite all. We may live a long way from Dimondale, Mich., but how many other people are there in our own vicinity, suffering as sharply as Mrs. Lethermon suffered? How many other tragedies are getting ready to break out as hers broke? We might look about us a bit, resolved to help wherever we can. We might keep our hearts sympathetic, so that we can respond readily to any appeal that may be made on us.

The world isn't unkindly. It doesn't see things. When you find a case of human suffering, help it if you can. If you can't tell others so that they may do something.

ENFORCE THE FOOD LAWS.

Dr. Harvey Wiley, famous pure food expert, charges that the recent prevalence of food poisoning in various parts of the country is due in large measure to the fact that the pure food laws are not being enforced.

Executive orders, Dr. Wiley charges, have crippled enforcement officers from obtaining strict observance of the federal laws.

It is hard to tell, at this moment, how far Dr. Wiley's charges may be justified. But the matter should be looked into, at any rate. The pure food laws were put on the statute books only after a very long and very hard fight. It would be an outrage if they were being allowed to lapse now.

HEALTH, AND ACCIDENTS.

Many avoidable serious accidents are due to awkwardness or lack of alertness and agility, according to a bulletin of the Chicago health commissioner. The awkward individual who, because of weak muscles and stiff joints, needs both muscle development and training is not only subject to laughter when he stumbles over his own feet, but actually possesses insufficient grace and agility to keep him out of danger.

Exercise is healthful, it seems, in more ways than one.

Even with political parties after $100 contributions, that's not much of a bargain.

A house is being built in Gary, Ind., without a bit of wood in it anywhere. Ah! Solving the problem of the creaking midnight stair!

THE ANYMITES

STORY BY MAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

The Times practiced quite a while. The big band master had to smile to hear the funny sounds they made, but he was very kind. "Don't be impatient, boys," he cried. "There's nothing learned, if nothing's tried. If you keep on at practicing, you'll soon know how you'll find."

They kept right at it through the day. At last the band man said, "Well, I say, I think you all have done real well. Your harmony's just grand. We'll call you the Times band. Now, there's a name that's really grand. You've learned a couple pieces, so I'll let you play tonight."

The Times didn't mind a bit. In fact this plan made quite a hit, and when the show was on at night they played the two tunes that they knew. Although the clapping grew and grew, the Times had to quit. They didn't know another thing.

"Oh, we are in an awful fix," cried

Scouty. "Come, let's do some tricks. The crowd is calling for us 'cause they like the way we play. As long as we can play no more we'll just do stunts. They won't get sore. We'll tell that we'll learn some other tunes some other day."

The trainer's whip was loudly cracked. The Times staged a tumbling act. This satisfied the people and they all left feeling gay. A youngster then, Scouty cried, "I'd love to have a pony ride." And Scouty said, "All right, young man! You can just come this way."

A little pony soon was found a pulling gross out of the ground. The youngster shouted, "My, oh, my. I'd like to ride that one." "All right," said Scouty. "He's not wild." And then he grabbed the little child and put him on the pony's back. The tot thought this was fun.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"CHRIST JESUS" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, August 26.

The Golden Text was from John 1:14: "The Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, (and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father,) full of grace and truth."

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "But thou, Bethlehem Ephratah, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall he come forth unto me that is to be ruler in Israel; whose goings forth have been from of old, from everlasting" (Micah 5:2).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The advent of Jesus of Nazareth marked the first century of the Christian era, but the Christ is with out beginning of years or end of days" (p. 333).

Caring for the Baby in Hot Weather

(This series of articles is prepared under the direction of the Gorgas Memorial, which is organized to perpetuate the life work of the late Major-General Gorgas in preventing unnecessary illness. President Coolidge is the honorary president of the Gorgas Memorial, which has its headquarters at 1331 G Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.)

It requires the utmost care on the mother's part to supervise the food, clothing, airing, rest and play time of her baby, to keep him comfortable and well in summer.

Babies vary in vigor and powers of resistance as adults do, so it is not surprising to find that with some the stomach acts queerly if you take them on a visit with resulting marked change of environment and diet or after long periods of heat and unusual humidity.

The first vomiting and diarrhoea symptom is always important and should be reported to the doctor. Lucky the baby whose mother can nurse him through the summer provided that the quality of the milk really nourishes him. If the baby must have a bottle then keep the entire equipment for preparing the formula separate from your other cooking utensils, boil it all each day before using and be most careful in its handling. The dust or your unwashed hands may carry into his good germs which will upset him. Buy for him the best milk obtainable. Most physicians advise that it be boiled for three minutes. Water must be boiled until he is two years old and later if there is any doubt of its purity. Under-feed rather than over-feed during the extreme heat. Cereals and prunes may safely be cooked one day, cooled and kept in an ice box over night. Vegetable pastes, orange juice, custards and junkets should be freshly prepared each morning. Dress the baby as lightly as you can to keep the hands and feet warm. A linen mesh band with shoulder straps and a diaper are sufficient during the heat of the day. Light weight kimono may be added when it becomes cooler, with a regular stockinet night garment for the cooler nights. The attractive Sun-Suits now on the market for the daily sun-bath have done much to persuade mother to use few garments. The delicate baby's skin should tan gradually, not be allowed ever to sunburn. Leave the diaper off even for short periods when you can.

Heat rashes and all upsets are less frequent when much boiled water is given between feedings, when there are fewer layers of clothing and when there is plenty of chance given for the baby to kick freely and air the skin.

Summer can and should be the most healthful time for your baby.

Reynolds Wire Club Adds Another Win To Their Long List

The Reynolds Wire Co., baseball team added another victory to their long list by defeating the Keystone team of Peoria at Singer Field Sunday afternoon in a ninth inning batting bee which resulted in a 3 to 2 score. Reilly led off with a hard single through short to center field and Harvey pounded another one in to center field scoring Reilly when the ball was thrown away in an effort to prevent the tally from counting.

Peoria bunched hits in the second inning and scored two runs on three bingles and an error. Miller then settled down and allowed but five hits during the afternoon, striking out seven batters, walking but two and hitting one. The Peoria twirler, a southpaw, kept his hits well divided and allowed but eight of these, fanning eight, walking three and hitting three.

The visiting team was accompanied by a large delegation of fans and a "rube" band, which furnished a concert during the game and led the team onto the field at the opening. The locals had a clown band on hand and the fans were amply entertained during the afternoon.

Watching the Big Scoreboard

BY HERBERT W. BARKER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

With the National League's inter-sectional series virtually over, the four western contenders now can begin cutting each other's throats while the New York Giants, wrathful over their recent beatings at Cincinnati and Pittsburgh, seek to visit their vengeance on the more or less helpless east.

It's no secret that John McGraw hopes to win the pennant just by these means.

In theory this is a good scheme. But John didn't start out very well yesterday. The Giants were out-gamed by the Brooklyn Dodgers, 4 to 3, Del Bissonette picking the tenth inning as the spot for his 20th home run of the season.

The defeat was all the more costly for McGraw in that the St. Louis Cardinals, themselves buffeted around in recent weeks, again trimmed the helpless Phillies, 6 to 1, and lengthened their league lead to three and a half games over the Giants and the Chicago Cubs.

The Cubs, defeating the Boston Braves 6 to 3, for the fourth straight time, moved up to a tie with the Giants in games won and lost, although they are no better than third

Bobby Jones Saddens Britons With Score

Chicago, August 27.—(AP)—Members of England's Walker Cup team have met with little encouragement since their arrival in Chicago to whip themselves into shape for the international cup matches with America.

After failing to get by the first round of match play in the western amateur golf championship at the Bob-o-link club last week, they matched strokes with Captain Bobby Jones and his American teammates for practice at the Chicago golf club yesterday and came away sad and forlorn.

Taking what he termed "just a little workout", Bobby burnt up the

New York, August 27.—(AP)—It will be a battle of kings and former kings when Bobby Jones, the Atlanta lawyer, seeks his fourth national amateur golf championship at the Braeburn Country Club, West Newton, Mass., a fortnight hence.

One hundred and fifty-six golfers, cream of amateur talent in the United States, Canada and Great Britain are entered. It is revealed by announcement of pairings for the qualifying rounds, Sept. 10 and 11.

No fewer than eight former national amateur champions, the present and a former British title-holder, and the current Canadian ruler are in the field against Jones who will attempt to repeat his victories of 1924-25-27.

Washington.—(AP)—The humid, hot summer in Washington has been used by Frank T. Davies of McGill university, Montreal, to prepare for his adventure in the frigid Arctic as the physicist of the Byrd expedition.

His duties will include investigation of magnetic, electrical, atmospheric, radiation, ice and other physical conditions in that vast, practically unknown region. In this work, which is expected to fill large gaps in man's knowledge of these phenomena, the Carnegie Institution of Washington is cooperating with the expedition by lending magnetograph and electrograph equipment of rare precision. Davies spent the summer here studying the operation of these instruments with the aid of scientists in the institution's department of terrestrial magnetism.

"Electromagnetic storms, so frequently coincident with the development of sunspot activity, are in general greatest in magnitude and effect in the polar regions of the earth," Dr. A. Fleming, assistant director of the department, explains. "These storms are accompanied by polar lights and electrical currents in the earth's crust frequently powerful enough to disturb cable, telephone and radio communication."

"They evidently are the result of bonds of union between the earth, the planets, the sun and the stars other than that of gravity, probably electrical in nature and as yet unexplained. Thus the Byrd Antarctic expedition has a rare opportunity—the more so because of the greater scarcity of observations and expeditions in the Antarctic regions than in the Arctic—for obtaining data and information which unquestionably will materially aid in the solution of these outstanding questions."

At the expedition's base station Davies will set up an electrograph for making continuous photographic record of variations in the electric pressure in the air and a group of variometers with a special camera which will make a similar record of variations in declination, showing the continually shifting magnetic direction between the true and magnetic poles and in the horizontal and vertical intensity of the earth's magnetic field. A continuous record of temperature variations will be obtained with these instruments at the same time.

Portable instruments also are being provided for additional observations during sledge trips to determine the distribution and variation of the earth's magnetism at different points.

The magnetic equipment loaned for the sledge trips includes the so-called dip circle and compass attachment with which the direction and force of the earth's magnetism can be ascertained. Other instruments for investigation of the electrical conductivity of the atmosphere are being provided by McGill university and the research laboratory of the United States navy is supplying equipment for spectroscopic studies of the aurora.

MARGARINE

Many correspondents write to me asking about the food value of different kinds of butter substitutes. There are really only two types of margarines in the market, although made by many different companies. The oldest kind was originally called oleomargarine and is composed of animal fats, vegetable fats, salt and milk. The other commonly called nut-margarine, is made of vegetable fats, salt and milk. Each company making either the animal fat or the vegetable fat margarine uses its own formulas or recipes, but of course all this is done under the supervision of the pure food laws.

Napoleon III offered a prize for so mepalatable form of fat food which could be used like butter, of which there was a scarcity at that time. His prize was won in 1870 by a Frenchman named Mege-Mouriés who called his product oleomargarine. His method or other similar methods have been used that time, and today there are sixty-one margarine factories in the United States alone, with an entire annual business of over $100,000,000.

Many people prefer the flavor of margarine to that of cow's butter and others use it because it is considerably cheaper in price. As far as the food value of margarine is concerned, it is very similar to that of butter, although it has been claimed that the vitamin A of cow's butter is absent or a negligible quantity in margarine.

The fact is that all vitamins are found mostly in the green leaves of plants, and it is not essential that we secure any of these from any one kind of food. If one desires to use margarine because of its lower price or because he enjoys the taste, there is no reason why he cannot substitute this nourishing fat for cow's butter.

Many of the nut-margarine contain a large percentage of raw starch and therefore cannot be a good substitute for either cow's butter or the margarine made from animal fats. Although these nut-margarines are undoubtedly wholesome foods, they must be used carefully, as raw starch is always more difficult of digestion. The lower price of margarine is a consideration in some families where the income is small. At the present time cow's butter sells at about fifty-five cents a pound, while the different kinds of margarine sell for from twenty-three to twenty-five cents per pound.

One cannot question the wholesomeness of animal fats, vegetables, salt, milk or butter. Margarine is a scientific combination of these articles of food and is, of course, as wholesome a product as these foods are themselves. On the basis of cleanliness, soundness, freedom from contamination, convenience in handling, and suitability for cooking purposes, there is little difference between the different kinds of margarines and cow's butter. It is, after all, largely a question of the individual's selection of the most palatable margarine or butter which he can afford to buy.

QUESTION:—C. J. writes: "I had pneumonia several months ago. An abscess formed on my right lung, which was removed by an operation, cutting in behind my right shoulder blade. There is now just a small hole like a pinhead there, and pus comes out of it every morning. What can be done to stop that discharge, or will it stop itself in time? I still feel weak, and breathing is still bad. I am sixty-three years old."

ANSWER:—Try a fruit fast for a few days, and the discharge will stop if nature is ready for the opening to close.

QUESTION:—Mrs. S. writes: "I am greatly interested in your theories and we are following your menus published every week. When Sunday dinner is served at noon, are your luncheon menus suitable for Sunday supper?"

ANSWER:—It is perfectly all right for you to change your Sunday meals about, using the dinner at noon and the luncheon in the evening, although I think it is the better plan to use a generous morning and evening meal, and a lighter luncheon. This separates the two large meals of the day, keeping them approximately twelve hours apart.

QUESTION:—Martha D. writes: "I would like to know if there is a permanent cure for goitre. Is it safe to marry with this trouble, or would it affect a child?"

ANSWER:—If the goitre has not been operated on it can be cured simply through living on the correct diet. If you have a goitre when you marry, there is danger of its becoming larger if proper care is not taken when the child is born to you. One of my patients, cured of goitre over fourteen years ago when she was then eighteen, of age, has since had three children, and through proper care has never had a return of her thyroid trouble.

Dr. McCoy, Los Angeles specialist, will gladly answer personal questions on health and diet, addressed to him, care of Evening Telegraph. Enclose stamped, addressed, large envelope for reply.

STARCHY COMBINATIONS

When you use starches, only one kind should be used at a meal, and this starch should be combined only with the cooked and raw non-starchy vegetables. No fruits of any kind—not even tomatoes should be used with this meal.

The reason for this is that starch digestion begins in the mouth as chewing mixes the saliva with the starch. If acids are used at the same time, the alkalinity of the saliva is spoiled and cannot properly convert the starch into sugar.

If starch, tomatoes and meat are mixed and pass into the stomach, both the meat and tomatoes will stimulate the flow of the gastric juice, which has no digestive element in it that can in any way convert the starch. On the other hand, an excess of gastric juice only sours the starch and makes it unfit for digestion in the intestines where the principal change of starch takes place.

The simple way then to use starch is to use only one starch food at a time, and to use it in combination with the different non-starchy vegetables, both in the cooked and raw forms. The following proper combination with other foods:

1. Baked potato, cooked cucumbers, salad of grated carrots and lettuce.

2. Boiled whole rice, cooked asparagus and carrots, raw spinach.

There are really no vegetables which do not contain a small amount of starch, but the following list contains less than five per cent: celery, spinach, string beans, asparagus, summer squash, cucumbers, eggplant, beet tops, turnip tops, lettuce, okra, chayotes, oyster plant, mallow, kale, zucchini, and even small beets, carrots, parsnips, and turnips. The larger and more mature beets, carrots, parsnips, and turnips contain as much as eight to twelve per cent of starch, but may usually be taken as non-starchy vegetables.

I will briefly explain to you just how food is digested in the stomach, and also in the intestines. The digestion of food begins in the mouth, but only one kind of food is really digested by the saliva. That one food is starch. Meats, greens, fruit and other foods (except starches) are not in any way digested in the mouth except that mastication breaks these foods up into smaller particles. The ptyalin, or digestive ferment in the saliva, acts upon the starch, and partially converts it into sugar.

When a mixture of meat, bread, and greens is taken into the stomach, the chemical action of the gastric juice changes the meat from protein into simpler forms so that it can be absorbed. The digestive juice of the stomach has no effect what soever upon the bread and greens except to make them sour because of the one-half of one per cent hydrochloric acid contained in the juice.

The digestion of starch does not take place in the stomach, as there is no part of the gastric juice which has the property to act upon the starch. As the food passes into the intestines, the bile, which is alkaline, is mixed with the combination of bread, meat, and greens, if this mixture is already too acid the bile is capable of converting it into a liquid alkaline, most of which can then be acted upon by the amylase, steapsin, trypsin, and intestinal renin. These ferments chemically digest the different food elements, and can handle almost any mixture if enough bile has been combined with it.

The chief difficulty seems to be in getting bad mixtures through the stomach and into the intestines without setting up a conflict between the digestive juices of the stomach and those of the intestines.

(My next article is on protein combinations.)

Monday August 27th, 1928.

one time my pulse will register sixty, at another time eighty, for no apparent reason. Has this change in pulse any significance for a well man of sixty?"

ANSWER:—Your pulse will be much lower when you are resting, and much faster after exercising. This is perfectly normal, but such a variation as you note should not occur while you are quiet. If so, it is because of a varying amount of gas pressure against your heart. This is due to improper food, eating too hastily, overeating, and gassy food combinations.

QUESTION:—Reader, asks: "Does buttermilk tend to produce acidosis on account of the lactic acid it contains?"

ANSWER:—A buttermilk diet, or the use of buttermilk in place of a meal has a tendency to cure acidosis rather than to cause it. The lactic acid of the buttermilk has a beneficial effect upon the intestinal flora, or vegetable growths in the intestines.

QUESTION:—L. D. P. asks: "Will you kindly give me some information about yellow jaundice, its cause and cure, and how long it lasts if taken care of immediately?"

ANSWER:—Jaundice may be caused by a serious disease of the liver, such as cancer or cirrhosis, but when it first appears it usually is caused by catarrhal inflammation of the bile ducts or by the bile being stopped through the obstruction caused by gall stones. The treatment which I would suggest would of course depend upon the cause found through an examination; but on general principles, a fruit fast would be effective in stimulating the flow of bile and removing the jaundice, at least, temporarily.

Evening Telegraph Correspondent With Hoover

No matter where a presidential candidate goes, the newspaper men are always with him. Here's Herbert Hoover, on his vacation deep in the California wilds, photographed at the base of a great redwood tree with three press association correspondents. Holding Hoover's left hand is Paul R. Mallon, United Press correspondent, holding his right hand is William K. Hutchinson International News Service, while the gentleman in the overcoat on the extreme right is James West, of the Associated Press. ARM CHAIR JOURNEYS

Hope-Chests Win Anatolian Husbands

BY PRISCILLA RING
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Turkish city women have westernized their love affairs and weddings. Anatolian peasants cling to the four traditional ceremonies of marriage.

Village girls still let their parents choose their husbands and still have one ambition: a hope chest filled with at least 500 sets of underwear, stockings and towels, all made by their own hands, to be distributed among the wedding guests.

Once the hope-chest is full, mothers of marriageable sons inspect the girl's handiwork, and, if pleased, talk of marriage contracts. The parents arrange all formalities, and a village boy and girl are legally man and wife before they have seen each other.

First among the four ensuing ceremonies is the bride's bath on a Monday. The guests, women only, gather in the hall of the public bath.

Married women must wait out in the hall while girls lead the bride into the bath where they take off her white, tinsel-sparkling wedding gown but leave on her head the crown with tinsel streamers and on her breast the gold coin sent by the groom. They wrap her in a huge embroidered towel and put on her feet wooden slippers with very high heels so that all the guests may see her.

Undressing and draping themselves in towels, the girls conduct the bride three times round the pool with laughter and singing, while incense is burned and colored candles lighted. Then all plunge into the pool and everyone takes a turn at snatching the lucky tinsel streamers from the bride's crown.

Tuesday's ceremony, "Henna Night," finds the women guests sitting cross-legged in the municipal nuptial hall round a huge bowl of henna, lumps of which are placed on leaves and passed to each guest after a relative has placed the first morsel on the bride's tongue. Henna is supposed to be lucky, so the girls stain their fingers with it, dreaming of happiness, and the old women put it on their hair praying for tranquil death.

The climax of "Henna Night" is the offering of gifts in the form of gold coins, which each guest ties to the wrist of the bride. A woman known as "the shouter" calls out the name of each donor and the value of the coin, so that afterwards every guest may receive from the hope-chest an article equivalent to the value of her own offering.

The bride's trousseau is carried to the house of the groom on Wednesday by a long procession of women triumphantly faving each article as they go singing through the village.

On Thursday the bride herself is drawn in a closed carriage to her new home, while the village cavaliers race on horseback across the village green, the winner galloping off to the house of the groom to shout, "Your bride is coming," and to dash away with the gift which the groom holds out to him.

When the bridal procession arrives, the groom lifts the veil of his wife, looks for the first time upon her face, and carries her into the house.

Once the exciting business of being a bride is over, the Anatolian woman spends the rest of her life at home or working sturdily in her husband's fields while he goes soldering or passes his days smoking the hub-bubble and playing tric-trac in the coffee-houses.

Wood Pulp Clothing
Boon To Modern Eve

Chicago—(AP)—As Mother Eve plucked her first attire from the forest, modern woman may also take her garb from the woodland.

Synthetic silk produced from wood is common, women's shoes of artificial material are available, and even hats and cloaks are pulp products.

All because chemistry found that the uses of cellulose—an important element of plant life—are almost limitless.

The authorities for these unannouncements were Gustavus J. Esselen, a consulting engineer of Boston, and Dr. G. L. Wendt, dean of chemistry and physics at Pennsylvania State college, both speakers before the Institute of the American Chemical society at Northwestern university.

Dr. Wendt said that the girl of today may cheaply attire herself in garments that only a queen could afford before the beaker and the bunsen burner showed science the short cut to artificial silk.

Because so many artificially made commodities can be found in wood pulp, Dr. Wendt believes use of wood for structural purposes should end. The day for wood fuel is past and for building purposes many other materials are available. Synthetic houses were forecast, with composition walls, lacquer finished; draperies of wood, and furniture and floors which appear to be wood but are not.

Esselen traced the advancement of civilization, linking each phase of its evolution with newly found usages for cellulose.

Man first cut the chains of distance when he went both for sails. Paper was discovered as another step upward. The airplane today rides on cellulose in the wings, Esselen said, while other derivatives of cellulose have further advanced civilization.

There is an extraordinary echo in the Cathedral at Pisa. If you sing two notes there is no reverberation, but if you sing three they are taken up, swelled, and prolonged into a beautiful harmony.

A banyan tree in India has been known to shelter 7000 men. The circumference of its spread of branches is 3000 feet.

CRACK SHOTS OF NATION GATHER

Camp Perry, Ohio—The crack shots of America are gathering here for the greatest "powder Derby" ever held in this country. From every state men and women, boys and girls, rich and poor, are beginning to flow through the gates of the local rifle range—the largest in the country—for the National Rifle and Pistol Matches which will open on August 26 and continue until September 16. Soldiers, sailors and marines, kids and big game hunters, all are settling down in a city of tents large enough to shelter 3,000 persons.

This great tournament for modern Daniel Boones will open on the 26th with the formation of classes in the Small Arms Firing School where any citizen may learn to handle a rifle or pistol. The students will be divided into groups, each under a competent instructor. There will be classes for members of the Junior Rifle Corps of the National Rifle Association including boys and girls from 12 years old to 18. National Guardsmen, Civilians and men from the Reserve Officers' and Civilian Military Training Camps will be grouped together. Police officers from all parts of the country will also receive special instruction. Theirs will be one of the most interesting schools. The course will include hand to hand fighting, the use of tear gas and smoke candles and other ultra-modern methods of taming criminals.

The school will remain in session until September 1, when the N. R. A. 30-calibre rifle matches, which include many of the great classics of the range, will open. These will end on September 8. The N. R. A. small bore shot on September 10, and the National Individual pistol even on the same day. On the following day the great National Individual Rifle Match will crowd the mile-long firing line with the greatest shots of the Army, Navy, Marines and all other branches of the service. Many civilians, including famous big game hunters, have also entered this event.

However, the climax of the big "powder Derby" will not be reached until September 14th, when the National Rifle Team Match gets underway. This is the Yale-Harvard game of marksmanship and never fails to draw a crowd. Last year it resulted in a sensational range duel between the Infantry and Marine teams and the closest score in the history of American rifle competition. The result was uncertain until the last few moments of firing, when Sergeant W. F. Bissenden of the Infantry broke a world's record, tied the Marine score and gave his team the match on decision.

The great experts are not the only firers to enjoy the matches. There are many special matches, including shooting at running deer targets. Boys and girls as young as 12 years of age may enter the Junior Rifle Corps Matches which open on August 27 and close on September 1.

Teachers Pets Get
Scolded By 1 Duce

Rome—(AP)—A death blow to "teachers' pets" and "mothers' boys" has been dealt by the highest authority in the Fascist party. As a consequence, the end of term examinations in the high schools and universities of Italy, the results of which are just being sent out to anxious parents and students, have been conducted on a strictly merit basis.

Hitherto it had been the practice to write letters of recommendation to certain students well connected with the Fascist regime's hierarchy given a helping boost or that their faulty conjugation of Latin verbs be benignantly overlooked for the sake of their parents' connections.

Benito Mussolini, who as a poor boy had to fight for an education, dictated an order which said in part: "The Party secretary forbids all its members to write such letters, no matter on whose behalf, or to take any stock in them once they receive any of them."

matches open on the same day and extend to September 5. The N. R. A. pistol and revolver matches will be fired on August 27, and September 3, 5 and 6. The National Pistol Match will be

MATCHED WITH GOD'S HOUR

By REV. GRAHAM FRANK

(Pastor, Central Christian Church, Dallas, Texas)

Rupert Brooke and Shakespeare give expression to two widely different attitudes toward life; the former in the line, "Now God be thanked who has matched us with his hour"; the latter in the lament of Hamlet: "The times is out of joint, O cursed spite, That ever I was born to set it right."

The latter is the classical expression of that spirit of petulant rebellion against those hardships of life which interfere with personal ease; the former the embodiment of that spirit of heroism and courage with which noble souls always face the stern necessities.

Every person experiences both of these moods. There are times when life challenges one's heroism and courage. There are other times when the interferences of life's demands awaken a spirit of rebellion in the soul.

The mood of Hamlet is one to be withstood. To submit to it means to come to that pathetic self-pity which withers all the nobler faculties of the soul. The mood of Rupert Brooke is one to be cultivated and encouraged. "Be strong, quit ye like men", is a Biblical admonition to which we should give heed.

Life has many joys, many sunlit hours, many gracious experiences, but there are, likewise, times of strain and struggle. To meet these with heroism, with faith in God and in the final victory of goodness and righteousness—this is the only philosophy of life that offers any hope for this or any life.

"Be strong!" We are not here to play, to dream, to drift. We have had work to do and loads to lift; Shun not the struggle, face it, 'tis God's gift; Be strong!"

British Women In Methodist Pulpits

Liverpool, England—(AP)—Women are now to be admitted to the Wesleyan Methodist ministry on the same terms as men, as a result of the adoption of committee recommendations made to a conference meeting here.

Provision is made, however, that in the case of a woman minister's marriage, her resignation shall automatically take place, since she thereby "accepts another vacation involving responsibilities which would interfere with the fulfillment of the duties of woman minister."

All Elks are invited to this big stag event and it is expected that delegations from neighboring lodges will attend. Earl Nugent heads the committee and the entertainment will include a bounteous spread.

Schools will begin at Rochelle township high school on Tuesday, September 4th, at 9:00 A. M. Early enrollment is important as classes will take up their work immediately.

The Honest Bill shows, combined with Moon Brothers, will show at Rochelle, Monday, August 27, both afternoon and night, and they are one of the few big tops on the road today who stage a free parade. The circus is a 40 truck caravan aggregation, and will pitch their 1,000 seating capacity top on the McConaughy lot between the Lincoln Highway and the Meridian, where the recent carnival was held. All kinds of wild animals, birds and reptiles are exhibited, in addition to aerial acrobat and trapeze performing acts. The circus comes from a run in Wheaton, Glen Ellyn, Highland Park, Lombard and Hinsdale. The downtown parade will be held at 1:00 p. m. Monday.

Eighteen tomatoes, which filled a half bushel basket, and which weighed 26 pounds, have just been picked by Rev. Frank A. Campbell, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. RAT IS SANITARY MENACE

BY U. S. PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE

Washington (AP)—The increasing menace of the rat to health is being recognized by sanitary authorities throughout the United States and in all civilized countries.

The direct connection between the rat and the spread of bubonic plague is well known, but a number of other ailments have been traced definitely or reasonably close to this pest and its fleas.

"Rat bite fever" is more or less prevalent in certain areas of the United States and foreign countries, and it has been suggested by investigators that the rodent may be responsible for several other more widespread diseases about which relatively little is known. This possibility also is being considered in the study of typhus fever cases where the presence of vermin has not been detected. Since the beginning of the bubonic plague epidemic at Hong Kong in 1894, this disease has been distributed through the channels of international commerce to all parts of the world where conditions are favorable to the breeding of rats and fleas. In the 20-year period ending with 1923, more than 11,000,000 persons died in India alone from this disease, but the number of cases in the United States has been held to a remarkably low figure.

The most effective measure which can be directed toward suppressing rats, Public Health Service authorities are convinced, is the general adoption of means to deprive them of their customary food supplies in the home, business establishment and warehouse. Bulk foods, they advise, should be kept in ratproof containers and every occupied residence should be equipped with a garbage can which will keep out the rodents. Consideration also should be given, they say, to architectural changes and modifications in the construction of buildings and residences with a view to eliminating nesting places for rats.

OBITUARY

FRANK E. SHUGARS, son of John and Mary Shugars, was born in Chambers Grove, Joe Davies county, Illinois, August 2, 1863. He departed from this life August 18, 1928 at his home north of Grand Detour at the age of 65 years. 16 days, his sudden death resulting from heart trouble.

On December 19, 1893 he was united in marriage to Mary E. Sausser of Orrville, Ohio. To this union were born seven children. Those who survive and mourn his untimely departure are: his wife, Mary E. Shugars, the daughters and sons, Mrs. Myrtle Dykhuizen of Morrison, Ill., Mrs. Alva Hoff of Grand Detour, Vernon of Alden, Iowa, George at home, Mrs. Grace Deeden of Davis Junction, Mrs. Carrie Kelsler of Polo, and Miss Marian at home. He is also survived by eight grandchildren and three brothers, James of Milledgeville, David of Wellsburg, Iowa, and Reuben of Concordia, Kas.

Mr. Shugars was a kindly disposed man, a good husband and father and a well intentioned neighbor. Many friends and neighbors will miss his kindly presence but in home where his place as husband and father has been made vacant, his father love and tender interest so suddenly removed, there will this heavy blow be keenly felt.

The funeral services were held on Monday afternoon, August 20 from his late home at 2 p. m. with Rev. L. W. Walter, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church of Dixon in charge of the services. Interment was made in Oakwood cemetery.

"We should never have sent him to Dr. Fostick," groaned Sybil. "What he didn't know wouldn't have hurt him the way this dreadful knowledge is hurting."

The attacks came more frequently. Mr. Thorne gave up work and became a semi-invalid. He drew up a will and talked of what he wished them to do after his death.

"We must have the library repared this Spring," Mrs. Thorne might remark.

And Mr. Thorne, sighing deeply, would opine that he'd be dead and in his grave before that was done.

Or Tad would be making plans for his marriage.

"We'll name our first child for you, Dad," he proposed, "and then you'll have to start a handsome bank account for him."

Tears came to his father's eyes. "I'll never live to see a grandchild of mine," he predicted dully.

As spring approached, Sybil gaily anticipated a summer at Winnao.

"The crocuses will be coming up soon, Daddy," she cried, "and all the darling tulips, and those lovely purple hyacinths we put in last fall. I think we could be moving down in a few weeks now."

"Why, sure," he approved. "That would be fine."

His loving cheerfulness hurt Sybil more than all his dire predictions, for she knew that in his heart he felt he would never see their house by the sea again. Nor live to touch a crocus, nor smell while in abstinence it was retarded. Three individuals in normal health submitted to the tests. They were required to pursue their usual routine of work and diet while holding their daily consumption of coffee, tea, water and milk at fixed quantities, in different proportions for each, over a considerable period. They then abstained from coffee and tea for several months until the effects of habituation had worn off.

The effects were measured by giving them controlled doses of pure caffeine, theobromine and theophylline dissolved in water, increasing the amount until a distinct biological effect could be observed, both during the period of habituation and afterward.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
SYBIL THORNE, Boston society girl, weary with disillusionment and disappointed in love, hears from her adored brother, TAD, the story of his love for VALERIE WEST.

Valerie, pink and white and blonde, completely wins the approval of Tad's mother, who longs to see both her children married and settled down. But Sybil, passionately eager for Tad's happiness, is skeptical of Valerie's baby ways.

"You can't say a girl's an angel because she's never had a chance to be a devil," reasons Sybil, who has had plenty of chance herself. "Val's a vamp, or I'm cuckoo."

Plans for an elaborate wedding go gaily on, when suddenly the family learn that Mr. Thorne has a bad heart.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER IV

BEFORE his visit to the great diagnostician, Mr. Thorne, after his dizzy spells, invariably observed that he was not as young as he used to be.

"Nothing to worry about," he insisted and consoled Mrs. Thorne, hovering about with pills and hot water bags. "Just a bit of indigestion. Mother. Cabbage or pigs' knuckles—or something."

Baked beans, roast pork, red meats, pastries—the poor man grew wretchedly abstemious. And still the dizzy spells persisted, more frightening as they became constantly recurrent. From the beginning he refused to give his heart even passing consideration, blaming pains and vertigo alike on something he might have eaten.

Golf, poker, a good cigar, a square meal and the Polies—when a man stares death in its empty sockets he has no joy in them. From all life's pleasant things he turned away and sat with a shawl over his knees, staring with mild blue eyes from the window of his bedroom. While in the dining room below the family gathered in gloomy conference.

"We should never have sent him to Dr. Fostick," groaned Sybil. "What he didn't know wouldn't have hurt him the way this dreadful knowledge is hurting."

The attacks came more frequently. Mr. Thorne gave up work and became a semi-invalid. He drew up a will and talked of what he wished them to do after his death.

ENFORCEMENT THE SOLUTION TO TAX ILLS SAYS MOORE

Teacher Gives Interview On Evils Of State Tax Law

(Herewith is the third of a series of articles in which officials of statewide organizations present, through The Associated Press, their versions of "What's Wrong With Taxation in Illinois?")

Carlinville, Ill., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Robert C. Moore, secretary of the Illinois Teachers' association, wants to know how a teacher can retain his enthusiasm for teaching children obedience to law when "the knows that the support of the institution of which he is a part is threatened by violation of tax laws."

Mr. Moore believes the most immediate and pressing needs in tax reform are rigid enforcement and perfect administration of the law.

"It is high time," he said, "that we began to talk of the blessings of taxation and to cure the evils that have given taxation a bad name." His statement on "What's Wrong With Taxation" follows:

"Our tax system is antiquated and poorly adapted to the modern forms and distribution of wealth. The Legislature believes that constitutional limitations prevent modernizing it. Up to this time it has been impossible to amend the Constitution so as to remove this limitation. Therefore, we seem to be bound to the old uniform general property tax and unable to levy an income tax, a gasoline tax, severance taxes or other forms of taxes to supersede, lighten or supplement property taxes as has been done in other states.

"Our extremely numerous and small territorial tax units cause great inequalities and inequities in taxation because of the very unequal distribution of wealth and property in proportion to local needs.

"Our tax system is poorly administered by the multitude of local tax officials with their widely varying ideas, abilities, virtues and judgments of values. Some of them are thoroughly conscientious, some 'play politics' with assessments, some use exemptions and assessment to reward their friends and punish their enemies, some allow 'tax fixing' and 'tax dodging,' and many of them vie with each other in making low assessments.

"The state tax commission has had its powers of assessment and equalization very narrowly limited, and until recently has seemed reluctant to assert even these limited powers. All this has resulted in glaring inequalities and inequities, tax-dodging, tax-fixing and open disobedience and violation of the tax laws until billions of dollars worth of property is under-assessed or not assessed at all.

"For instance, it has been found that some property is assessed at one hundred per cent of its value or more and some at two or three per cent of its value or not at all. The present 100 per cent assessment in Illinois places the value of all property at only a little over eight billion dollars, although expert economists say the taxable property in our State is worth at least forty billion dollars. The inequalities have caused bitter complaint and insistent demands for adjustment, and it has become the custom to scale assessments downward toward the lowest instead of upward toward the highest, or even the low ones up to the average.

"As more and more property is hidden or under assessed, tax rates are increased to obtain the revenues necessary to support our public institutions; and as rates go higher and higher, more property is driven into hiding or underassessment. This is called the 'vicious circle' and has caused what is practically a breakdown of our tax system.

"Some of the results of this breakdown are these:

"1. Many of our public institutions are beginning to suffer for want of financial support, deficits are increasing, and public services needed and demanded by the people are being curtailed.

"2. It has become common to speak of taxation as an evil and something to be avoided or strenuously opposed, although taxation is really a necessity and a boon to society. Taxation is necessary to pay for protection against war, crime, pestilence and ignorance; it is necessary to support such helpful and constructive things as postal service, schools, highways, salaries of administrative officers, care of the helpless, etc. Tax funds that purchase a dollars worth of benefit or service to humanity for every dollar expended are not wasted but are profitably invested. If taxation were abolished, civilized society would revert to anarchy, savagery and chaos. It is high time we began to talk of the blessings of taxation and to cure the evils that have given taxation a bad name.

"3. The flouting of the constitutional tax provision and the open disobedience of our tax laws are causing disrespect for the constitution and encouraging disobedience of all laws. Even the morale of the teachers is being weakened, their faith in their State government is being shaken, and their ability to teach good citizenship is being lessened. For how can a teacher retain his full faith in the government of his State and his full enthusiasm for teaching children obedience to law when he knows that the support of the very institution of which he is a part is being threatened by the violation of tax laws by respectable people of wealth and power and the non-enforcement of those laws by the State?

"If we cannot get a constitutional amendment or new laws to improve our tax system, let us fully, rigidly and impartially enforce the laws we have. Possibly if we were really to use the tax system and tax laws we have, we would find them better than they now seem. The most immediate and pressing needs in tax reform are rigid enforcement and perfect administration of the law."

Pope Calls Gasparri Cure For The Blues

BY SALVATORE CORTESE

(Associated Press Correspondent) Rome.—(AP)—Reports that Cardinal Gasparri, the 76-year-old papal secretary, would resign in October to write a history of the Roman bishops has raised the question of how Pope Pius XI will get along without the services of his gayest and most optimistic adviser.

Added to his official duties, Cardinal Gasparri has been guardian of the pope's cheerful mood and the belief is fairly general that the Vatican might be a dull place without him.

His Eminence is learned to an unusual degree, genial and jovial. Equipped with a robust constitution and a taste for hard work, he has long been famous as the Vatican's most vigorous and tireless official.

He leaves his bed every morning at least an hour ahead of the pope, at five o'clock. He goes immediately into a private chapel adjoining his apartment and celebrates mass.

Breakfast is quickly over because Cardinal Gasparri has learned to satisfy himself with a roll, a glass of milk and coffee. There is nothing strange in that after one has examined the simple furnishings of his apartment and indications of an austere, Franciscan existence. The cardinal's sleeping room, for instance, contains only a small bed, a washstand and a small table. There is also a working desk usually piled high with papers. This also serves as a convenient place to toss his cardinal's red cap when he comes in.

At 8:30 he arranges his papers for submission to the pope and ascends directly to the latter's library by a private elevator. This daily council is for the purpose of examining newspaper editorials from all over the world and considering the general trend of affairs. It is often during the darkest crises that his wit has caused the pope to exclaim:

"Cardinal Gasparri is surely a cure for low spirits."

The secretary leaves the pope and attends to receiving callers. The scene changes to his suite, among the richest rooms in the Vatican, and he dons his brightly colored robes.

Swiss guards pace to and fro and a footman in gorgeous livery adds a final touch of formality. The footman's name is "Little Caesar" and his regular occupation is that of porter to the pope. His duties bring such meagre income, however, that he works as footman to the secretary on the side. Even the Swiss guards and other functionaries have been borrowed for the occasion so that Cardinal Gasparri reckons the cost of his establishment at a very small figure.
